Republican National Convention, 1876.

The next Union Republican National Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States will be held in the CITY OF CINCINNATI, on WEDNESDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF JUNE, 1876, at 12 o'clock noon, and will consist of delegates from each State equal to twice the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress, and of two delegates from each organized Territory and the District of Columbia.

In calling the convention for the election of delegates, the committees of the several States are recommended to invite all Republican electors, and all other citizens, without regard to past political differences or previous party affiliations, who are opposed to reviving sectional issues, and desire to promote a healthy, fraternal and permanent harmony throughout the country by maintaining and enforcing all the constitutional rights of every citizen, including the full and free exercise of the right of suffrage without intimidation and without fraud, who are in favor of the continued prosecution and punishment of all official public enemies, and of an economical administration of the Government by honest, faithful and capable officers, who are in favor of making a [illegible] as in government as experience may [illegible] suggest, who are opposed to imposing [illegible] of whom [illegible] tion by depreciating currency [illegible] and in favor of [illegible] the common school system in the [illegible] free from [illegible] and who maintain [illegible] for the promotion [illegible] who believe in [illegible] of the bonds, and [illegible] to the principles of 1776, as [illegible] them as to [illegible] laws, and strengthening [illegible] Union in the [illegible] of the Republic.

THE COLLEGE LAND SCRIP.

It seems that the Democratic leaders at Augusta, after all their secret caucusing, have been unable to get up any flicker in issue than the revival of Dr Jordan's exploded scrimp on concerning the sale of the Agricultural College Land Scrip, and our lively Mr. Bass has been selected to father the thing in the Legislature. Deserters from one camp to another are proverbially for an expensive display of zeal in the interest of their new allies, and our ambitious fellow-citizen is anxious to show how red-hot he can get as a Democrat. It is pretty evident that there was no special desire for investigation, the object being to get the Republicans to vote down the resolution on account of its grossly objectionable preamble, and then the Democrats could claim that our party shirked the inquiry. That this was the design was shown by the eagerness with which Mr. Bass choked off by the privileged motion to adjourn, the endeavor of Mr. Powers to offer a substitute quite as favorable to investigation but prefaced with more appropriate language than the gratuitous indictment put forward by the other side. On Saturday the Democrats had become convinced that the Republicans were too ready to meet them to admit of utilizing any buncombe, and the substitute or amendment of Mr Powers was accepted and passed.

The only objection to this investigation is on the score of useless expense, as the whole matter has been repeatedly examined and set forth in the public journals. But the Democrats assume the responsibility for the expense of the committee, and we are glad that the Republicans are determined that they shall now investigate to their heart's content. The appointment of four Democrats out of seventeen the committee, including the introducer, Mr. Bass, shows that our friends mean to force this matter to a test, and we hope that Mr. Bass and colleagues will be held up to the work memorable, until they make good their charges or retract them as publicly as they have been preferred. The same sort of irresponsible accusation was employed by the Democracy for years against the management of the State Prison, but when they were given free scope to substantiate their slanders, at a cost of over $2,000 to the State, the leaders of the investigation were compelled to withdraw all their charges and to attest publicly on the floor of the House the faithfulness and economy of the Prison administration. They have now the full power of the Legislature to aid them in making good their charges which they have bandied freely for political effect, and we want to see Mr Bass given abundant opportunity to spread himself.

It is hardly worth while to restate a case which was thoroughly reviewed in all its details during our last campaign. Suffice it that Mr Bass charged that the college lands granted by Congress to this State "have been sold by our State authorities at prices far below the market rates for such property," and that Mr. Blaine exposed the difference in price obtained by us and by the college in New York. As a matter of fact no lands were directly donated to either State, but a certain amount of scrip entitling the holder to locate public lands. In this State, notwithstanding strong arguments in favor of investing the scrip as endowment of some existing college, the Legislature decided to realize upon it and it was advertised according to Legislative order and sold to the highest bidders. The principal purchasers in Maine were General Franklin Smith of Waterville and W. K. Lacey of Pittsfield, both prominent Democrats and bids from parties in Bangor were rejected as lower than the price obtained. In all the controversy we have never seen any evidence advanced that prices for large blocks of unlocated lands ruled any higher elsewhere at the time. In New York the scrip was given to Cornell University, and its founder, Ezra Cornell, held it as an investment, spent much time personally and by agents in selecting specially valuable tracts, waited for advance of prices and realized a large amount. That is the whole story in a nut-shell.

Now, Mr Bass made the statement in the House on Friday that the Trustees, or one of them, when before the Committee on Agriculture, "had stated distinctly that the State had stolen the lands." Mr. Phillips, of the Committee, promptly declared that no such statement had been made before the Committee, when Mr. Bass modified by saying that "some of the Trustees had made such statements" elsewhere, if not before the Committee. Mr. Bass in part represents the city of Bangor and is supposed to understand the responsibility of making so serious a statement on the floor of the Legislature. He therefore owes it to himself, to his constituents and to the House to show when, where and by what Trustee of the State College such a charge was made. Certainly any person worthy of acting as a Trustee of an important State institution, who would make so direct a charge against former State officials, to members of the Legislature, should be willing to assume responsibility for it, and Mr. Bass should produce the authority for his statement. The investigation could hardly make a better beginning than by requesting Mr. Bass to bring forward the Board of Trustees.

THE ATTACK ON WEST POINT.

If the above caption should seem to revive memories of the treachery of Benedict Arnold it is not our fault but that of another generation of disloyalists who make unseemly haste, on their restoration to forfeited privileges, to commence the undermining of that Gibraltar of our military system. In examining the official list of members of the United States Congress of to-day, even the most conservative citizen must be somewhat startled to find the names of the Vice President and Postmaster-General of the late Confederacy, eight ex-members of the Confederate Congress, four Major Generals, fifteen Brigadier Generals, sixteen Colonels, four Lieut. Colonels, three Majors and five Captains of the Confederate Army. Twelve of these were members of the United States Congress immediately preceding the rebellion. The tyranny and despotism of Republican policy has relieved them from the disabilities of treason and they have just entered upon the work of legislating for the loyal people of the country. Their allies in the North were elected principally on the issue of "retrenchment and reform," and after six weeks of the session have passed without any practical measures, the majority in the House, under the influence of the ex-Confederates have made their first move for "economy" by cutting down the allowances of the Professors and Cadets at the West Point Military Academy.

Before the Rebellion West Point was a favorite institution with Southerners, as it afforded places for scions of chivalry who regarded labor as a degradation, and Southern favoritism was repaid by the facility with which officers reared at the National expense drew their swords in behalf of the cause of treason. But during the war the Southern element was necessarily withdrawn from the institution, while its graduates who were true to their flag bore a principal part in defeating the armed force of Rebellion. Hence the institution does not stand in high favor with the ex-Confederates, and one of their first movements on getting control of one branch of Congress is to vent their spite upon West Point by cutting down the appropriations required for its respectable maintenance. That is what has been done in the House within a day or two past, and while half a dozen Democrats have refused to join in the raid, nearly all those from the North have humbly obeyed the will of their Southern associates. Of course this action is sought to be justified by the plea of economy, but the amount involved is so small compared with the injury to the institution that the leading Northern organ of the party is unable to conceal its disgust, but declares that such legislation "is encouraging at the edge" while neglecting the bung.

This was more explicitly set forth by Hon. Eugene Hale in a brief speech on Friday, in which he stated the constant and large reduction of expenses by successive Republican Congresses since the war, and reminded the Democrats that while they are claiming credit for such cheese-parings as on the West Point bill, they have introduced Southern war claims upon the Treasury thus early in the session, ranging all the way from $5,000 up to $60,000,000, for refunding the cotton tax, with $3,000,000 for Mississippi levees and now demands flowing in every day. In reply to Sunset Cox he said these demands would aggregate ten times the amount that the Republicans have been able to save, and that when they should be brought up Cox would be compelled by his master to vote for them. This was undoubtedly the plain truth, but Mr. Hale took occasion to courteously waive any interpretation of offensive personality by saying "I mean the leading, combating influences of the party, of which the gentleman is an active and honored member; influences which he will be bound to follow and so far as I may say without being offensive) to obey." In reply to this Cox, who has already distinguished himself by such remarks as "Bellow away, you are a hyena," and "Oh, Blaine dry up," added the gross insult of characterizing Mr. Hale as "Blaine's little pup." He was called to order for this outrage and hastily withdrew the words rather than have them taken down at the desk. The chairman was also compelled to administer a sharp rebuke to the House for its disorderly applause of the blackguardism. The New York Times characterizes the action of Cox as "extremely indecorous" and says he was severely lectured for it by Mr. Holman. As Cox used to preserve some semblance of propriety when the Republicans controlled the House, his performances at this session can only be explained by a desire to show excessive zeal in carrying out the behests of the Southern leaders.

The bill itself and the disgraceful episode are fairly illustrative of the dominating spirit in the present House of Representatives. It would seem to ordinary people that pardoned rebels should be a little modest about assuming the military departments of the United States, but the first attacks have been made upon the agencies most instrumental in preserving the Union. The field on West Point is to be followed up by an attack upon the skeleton of our Regular Army, and a modest gentleman named Whitthorne, the Confederate Adjutant-General of Tennessee, is preparing a bill to abolish all the navy yards in the North. The loyal masses of the country have demonstrated the possession of a remarkable amount of good nature, but the revival of the Confederacy in Washington is rather more than they can stand.

ABOUT RECORDS.

Mr. Morrison of Illinois, the nominal Democratic leader in the House, made the usual mention of his services as a Union soldier in the biographical reports of former sessions, but has entirely omitted any reference thereto in the Congressional Directory of this year. Being charged with suppressing his loyal record in order to court the favor of ex-Confederate associates, he has put forward the very flimsy plea that he was obliged to cut down his biographical sketch in order to keep within the limits of the space accorded to members. The Directory shows that Mr. Morrison occupies but seven lines, while other members from his own State occupy twice that space, and throughout the book nearly every one of the ex-Confederates parades his rebellion record. Here is an extract from the biographical sketch proudly furnished by Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus Lamar, of Mississippi, who comes nearer than any other to the actual leadership of the Democratic majority:

"Was elected to the Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Congress of the United States, and resigned in 1860 to enter the Secession Convention of his State; in 1861 entered the Confederate Army as Lieutenant-Colonel of the Nineteenth Regiment and was promoted to the Colonelcy; in 1863 was instructed by PRESIDENT DAVIS with an important diplomatic mission to Russia."

No better illustration could be given of the drift of Democracy than the fact that its followers find it desirable to suppress all mention of loyal services, while such complacent references as the above to participation in a treasonable rebellion against the Government, are scattered throughout the pages of the official Directory of the United States House of Representatives.

OBITUARY.

THE LATE HON. H. H. STARKWEATHER.

The Hon. Henry H. Starkweather died of pneumonia on Friday morning in Washington. He was conscious to the last, and conversed with his wife, who arrived two hours before his death. Mr. Starkweather, who represented the IIfd District of Connecticut in Congress, was born in Preston, Conn., April 29th, 1823. He received his education in the public schools and was occupied in farming and teaching until the age of 24, when he began the study of law in the office of the Hon. La Fayette S. Foster of Norwich. Up to 1855 he voted with the Free Soil party, but took no active or prominent part in politics. In 1855 he joined the "American" or "Know Nothing" movement, and in 1856 was elected to the Legislature from Norwich by that party. He was active in the organization of the new Republican party, was for several years Chairman of the State Committee of that party. He was also a member of the National Republican Committee, and of the Executive Committee of that body, and was a delegate to the Republican National Conventions in 1860 and 1868. In 1861 he was appointed Postmaster at Norwich, which position he held until Feb. 22, 1866, when he tendered his resignation to President Johnson, as an indication of disapproval of the latter's course, and his unwillingness to hold office under such an Administration. In April, 1867, he was elected to the XLth Congress by the Republicans of his district, and has been re-elected four times, notwithstanding the custom which had hitherto been observed by the party of changing their representative once in four years. At home he was a public-spirited citizen, prominent and active in all worthy enterprises, and very generally respected and beloved by men of all parties. In public life he was unpretentious and modest, never thrusting himself into prominence, but always attentive to duty, and laborious in its discharge, and wielding great influence among his colleagues by the soundness of his judgment and the earnestness and sincerity of his convictions. His health was never robust, and for several years he has suffered from asthma.

The remains of the late Congressman have been conveyed to his former home at Norwich where the funeral will take place at 2 p. m., Monday, 31st.

A WALDO ECONOMIST.

Our Waldo friends will doubtless mate with some surprise that their Senator White cast one of the six votes for removing the State Capital to Portland. That was probably one of the "economical" measures which he hardly promised during the last election. The economy will be readily appreciated by Waldo citizens who may have business to transact at the State Capital. And then, of course, such a movement is so directly in the interests of his own section of the State!

In the matter of the rival organists on Central street, Lord is making himself ridiculous, and candor compels us to state that it is not him of the "Zoological Garden." The latter continues imperturbably to discourse free music and to daunt the hearers of his manager, while the former rails like a fishwoman at the City Solicitor, because that official declines to throttle the wild beasts. We would gently suggest that the Mayor is also a lawyer by profession, and we will warrant that the City Marshal will execute any specific order in the premises which His Honor may feel warranted in issuing officially. But the organ is keyed only for the abuse of Republicans, and could not grind any other tune even if it should prove that the Mayor and Solicitor hold very similar views as to which of the rival concerns on Central street falls most readily within the definition of a public nuisance. And that reminds us of the complainant's strange outlook to elect Judge Tapley on municipal issues.

The New York Times does not think that the "locality argument" will have much weight in the Presidential canvass. It says:

It is idle to say that the votes of Ohio would, if consulted, prefer Gov. Hayes to Mr. Blaine, for example, because the one lives there and the other somewhere else. We have known Mr. Blaine much longer than we have known their Governor. They have read much of his speeches; they have regarded him for years as one of their leaders. There is, in Ohio as in other States, a considerable Blaine party, really made up of those who can do no right, and which can do no right anything of work for its favorite from the moment the nomination is made.

A SAMPLE. When the rebellion broke out a Captain of Police at the Capitol building deserted his post and went South to fight in the ranks of treason. He was a native of Virginia, and appointed from that State.

The Democratic control of the House of Representatives brings this valiant officer into the public service again. The ex-Confederate Doorkeeper appoints him to a responsible position. Now he hails from California, having retreated to that State soon after the surrender of the Confederacy. After this appointment who will doubt the love of Democracy for those who tried to destroy the Union?

The Presque Isle Star-Herald quotes our commendation of Maj. Boyd's appointment as Postmaster at Houlton, with the following indorsement:

We fully endorse the closing remarks of The Whig. The loyal citizens of Aroostook believe in the offices of the Government being filled by loyal men. Men who were loyal, when to be so meant something and cost something, who have remained loyal to the right and the true, who make no truce with disloyalty either in theory or practice.

Ex-Senator Brownlow, referring to Mr. Blaine in this recent debate, says: "He made a speech which has never been equalled in any debate that has arisen out of the question of the late war. I thank God that we have men in Congress able and determined to meet these fire-eaters of the South and the copperheads of the North in debate, and vindicate the Union and its friends."

DENTAL CARD.

DR. J. P. BABCOCK desires to say to that class of sufferers who are afflicted with aching teeth that in all cases of severe pain, the pain can be instantly relieved, and that will from three to four further painless treatments the tooth may be filled and permanently restored to health. In support of his assertion Dr. B would say that in no single instance has he ever failed to save every natural tooth which he has attempted to save, and during the past four years there have been by actual count six hundred and twenty of them. Moreover, decective teeth should never be neglected until they ache, but upon the first appearance of decay they should at once be properly and so permanently filled, with some suitable material—absolutely Pure gold being preferable undoubtedly the best. Since 1861 Dr. Babcock has inserted in such teeth more than three thousand gold fillings, and it is with much pride that he makes the statement, that, to the best of his knowledge, but three fillings only out of that large number have proved defective.

THE STATE CAPITAL

Saturday's Legislative Doings—The State Printing—Capital removal—The College Lands—Bass given free scope to Investigate—Normal Schools Etc

[SPECIAL TO WHIG AND COURIER]

AUGUSTA, January 29 The principal business of the Legislature to-day may be defined in brief below Both branches have adjourned over to Monday afternoon

Only a few papers were passed relating to whether the Hospital has been kept during the past year to mention will Oak Grove Seminary, Maine Central Institute, the Clerk of the House to notify the selectmen of Plymouth that a vacancy exists in that branch from that town the heirs of George W Getchell

Petitions

Petitions asking for a law regulating fishing, restricting more than $100 to be the counties in which they are to be interdicted at their expense, giving towns to tax dogs A petition from the Selectmen of Belfast and 100 others against a dog tax

Divorce Reports

Report of the expediency of amending the law on lands of real estate may be perpetual by action Providing for rights of married women Providing notice for damage on highways Laws of County Commissioners relating to the trustees of local teachers wages

Bills were Reported

Bill to authorize municipal indebtedness to incorporate the Aroostook Log Driving Company which were ordered to be printed A charter was reported for the Franklin County Agricultural Society

The Jewett Debts

The petition of G K and F D Jewett of Bangor for legislation to enable them to make such composition for their insolvent debts to the State as to their other creditors was referred to the Judiciary committee to the Committee on Banks on a petition for a charter of the Scherer Manufacturing Company was reported

Bills for State Printing

The committee on Printing have reported bills providing for doing the State printing and binding—one from Messrs Spear, Osborn & Nash of Augusta and another from Frank S Simpson of Bangor The committee were authorized to contract with a firm which they consider fit for the interests of the State It will be known as Spear, Osborn & Nash the present printers have performed their work for from 15 to 20 per cent lower than any other low prices and this is complained of by Democratic printers Their bid is much lower than Smith's was might have been expected if those who knew that the Augusta Journal did not know the cost of printing thought it was

The Capitol Question

The matter was brought to the notice of the House again and there was lively debate Messrs Porter Anderson Tall and Haynes took a hand in the debate of between Haynes of Augusta and Anderson of Belfast there were some sharp hits and occasionally by what Haynes declared was a misconstruction of his remarks by Anderson Haynes said that the direct and the immediate removal of the Capitol from Augusta until now did he think the House was in sober earnest But he added if the legislature saw fit to regard it as for the best interests of the State to have the capitol removed he certainly would make no personal objection Amendment was to recede and concur with the Senate in the likely postponing the removal but House refused and after dividing on the yeas and nays voted to adhere by a majority to its former vote in favor of removal

The State College Land Sale

The House took up the matter of the sale of lands donated for the State College of Agriculture by the general Government at the instance of Mr Powers who offered his amendment (already published) giving the White College has subsist under the Act and Gen Chase of Belfast in the course of his remarks exhibited the disbilities of a man stating that Powers conversion was almost equal to that of Saul of Tarsus Much of the joke however was not so much on Powers who heard Mr Powers yesterday when go so far as to demand the fullest investigation The drift of the long talk that followed showed that no one was willing to oppose investigation and really the Republicans were more in battle for it than the Democrats who seemed to make some political capital by urging their offensive preamble and were conversant with the facts well enough to know that the lands sold were disposed of at the highest bidders and that there is no evidence of any fraud in the official records of the transactions of the sale The only objection raised by Mr Powers in behalf of the Republicans against Bass's order was on account of the grave charges it contained which were really an indictment against Gov Coony (now deceased) and Gov Chamberlain This was decidedly out of place, no in the line of legislative duty and deeply outrageous because there was no proof brought to the attention of the House to warrant such a procedure and I place it pronounced, a verdict of guilty before the slightest evidence on the subject had been produced I reproduce Powers amendment, which is as follows

Resolved, The lands or scrip granted by Congress to this State for a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, are reported to have been sold at prices far below those obtained by some other States for similar land or scrip be it

Ordered That a committee of seven on the part of the House with such as the Senate may join be appointed for the purpose of investigating said sales and that said committee have power to send for persons and papers, and administer oaths and report to this Legislature

As already stated, the amendment was adopted, and the following were selected on the part of the House Committee Messrs Bass of Bangor, Sheppard of Skowhegan, Powers of Houlton, Haynes of Augusta, Pike of Calais, Anderson of Portland and Kimball of Waterford—three of the number being Republicans

Normal Schools.

A bill was reported providing that the expense of supporting Normal schools be paid from money appropriated for the support of common schools.

Finally Passed.

The following has received a final passage and gone to the Governor for his approval. An act to incorporate the Masonic Temple Association of Belfast.

THE GREEN POINT N. Y. MURDER.

Finding the Mangled Remains.

ONE KRETZ CONFESSES THE DEED

The Search for the Murdered Man

New York Jan 30 Detectives were working hard to day on the Green Point murder case in which the head of William Simmons was found in the ship yard of John English on Milton street From the position of the head to the river, it was thought that the body was brought in the water Inquiries were made at places where Simmons was in the habit of visiting but no person acknowledged having seen him since Saturday night Victor Kretz who was known also by the name of Andrews backed an intimate friend of the deceased appeared to be uneasy under the questioning of the police and told the detectives of Simmons being in the habit of visiting some of his friends Green Point but on making inquiries this was found to be untrue

Portions of the Remains Found in Kretz's Trunk

On examining his house his trunk was found locked and nailed securely together so that it was with difficulty opened In it was found the legs and arms of the victim in the bottom was found the trunk The extremities were wrapped and covered with quicklime to hasten decomposition On the dress of Mrs Kretz which had just been cleaned was found a large spot of blood She said it came there from cropping a blood stain from the floor When Kretz heard the body was discovered

He Admitted the Murder

he said he did it because Simmons had been discovered in criminal intercourse with his wife This Mrs Kretz denies She was taken into custody She said they all had been drinking Simmons drinks being made stronger than the rest and when he became stupified Kretz took a hatchet and killed him It was probably done for a robbery as Simmons was known to have on his person money

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

THE MIDWINTER—THE DEMOCRATS AND THE CENTENNIAL BILL—THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC INQUIRY—STORM SCARES—SENATOR MORRILL—THE $14,000 SALARY ECONOMY—THE DEMOCRATIC CHANCE OF RUN—THE SENATE PAIN THEM AT THEIR WORK—THE INSTA BILL

WASHINGTON Jan 31st 1876

Here we have been blessed with a West Indian climate of the past week and Congressional matters have been dull and stupid Under such circumstances especially when the weather is of the delightful sort we are favoring Washington people with this week it is difficult for the people of Maine to learn that the great interests of the public generally are being neglected while the people of Maine are thinking of weather and perhaps feeling refreshed at the prospect of a long spell of Indian summer weather the people of Maine are thinking of the failure of the Democratic party to come fully up to their standard on the temperance question and thereby strengthen their natural enemy, the Democracy, from which they never did and never will receive a single encouraging word The most exhaustive speech on this bill was that of our own Senator, Lot M Morrill, who did the subject justice and himself credit in his remarks Here again do we find Maine at the front in a good cause, and without asking any one to take stock in my prophecy, I will venture the prediction that a great national temperance reformation will be the result of this investigation, if the bill goes through the House But I am sore afraid that the contingency of getting the approval of any body with a Democratic majority, will prove too much for so good a measure The speech of Senator Morrill was in reply to a constitutional objection urged by Mr Bayard, the chief Democrat of the Senate, or rather one who divides that honor between himself and Messrs Thurman and Gordon A careful review of this speech would be interesting to the temperance men of Maine

ALTERING SPEECHES

The present session abounds with good speeches. The particular thing, however, that detracts from the interest that centers in them, is the fact that many of the Democrats withhold their remarks for revision, and when they appear they are surrounded by better speeches on other subjects and few care to read them, and what is worse in some cases is, that in revising, they make a quite another speech. Especially is this the case with speeches of Messrs. Hill and Cox on the amnesty bill and Tucker of Virginia and Jones of Kentucky on the Centennial, inasmuch as they dragged a strong flavor of secession and States rights They are striking themselves to appear candid but it required all their foxy tact to be prudent

THE BURNS ANNIVERSARY

On the anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns the Burns Club of this city gave an entertainment where chief among the attractions was an oration by Mr Fogg a report of which is given in full by the local press Your correspondent was deprived of an opportunity of listening to the address, but the pleasure of reading it has not been denied him, and too much cannot be said in its praise

REDUCTION OF SALARIES

The sensational clamor for reform in the matter of salaries, just now being raised by the Democrats in the House bids fair to end as all their pretentious proclamations in that direction have ended in the past They are discovering that the Senate is more than willing to join in the reduction and the House Democrats already begining to draw off It is probable that there will be a material reduction in the highest of the salaries including their own but it is not reasonable to suppose that the Congress of the United States will reduce the salaries of its employes so low that they cannot get a living Take for instance the clerk who now receives a salary of $1 200 will be positively worth dollars of the same class received before the war A reduction of 10 per cent would leave it at only $1,080 If the salaries were fixed by a Democratic administration at low living rates they were either extravagant or the time they were established or they are too low now as everybody knows the cost of living is not less than fifty per cent higher than it was when the salaries were established

THE DEMOCRATIC CHANCE OF RUN

While we collect that a majority of the Democratic French House of Congress voted for the Hence and Pendleton salary grab and that a reform was in full Woolen Block were in a fair to obtain jectionable but it will carry home to engaged and the people of the country in proportions Which party is sure to be to a appearing of a light and get heard Republicans carry the idea that they are the reform party exclusively A little discovery by them that the same still not be the right belief the Republicans effort at reform and not based on effort to check the order in which as they only wish to pass the salaries and to have it decided by the Senate

THE FRAUD TAKING THE DEMOCRAT AT THEIR WORD

It seems to day to be a fact that the House will be met by the Senate on the question in regard to the bill relating to the salaries of the Senate and House and Congressional members of the House will be given prompt action to the effect that a committee of the House be appointed to confer with the committee of the Senate on the subject and to ascertain upon what grounds the Senate will consent to such a change regard to the question but really to the Senate upon that ground they are not at all in order to be upon the Senate

The fact is the first to the House committee Mr Randall is himself leading salary grabber gives a strong appreciation of the fact that he is a Democrat and Congressional matters have been Hot Hot Hot stirring Under such circumstances especially when the weather is of the delightful sort we are favoring Washington people with this week it is difficult for the people of Maine to learn that the great interests of the public generally are being neglected while the people of Maine are thinking of weather and perhaps feeling refreshed at the prospect of a long spell of Indian summer weather the people of Maine are thinking of the failure of the Democratic party to come fully up to their standard on the temperance question and thereby strengthen their natural enemy, the Democracy, from which they never did and never will receive a single encouraging word The most exhaustive speech on this bill was that of our own Senator, Lot M Morrill, who did the subject justice and himself credit in his remarks Here again do we find Maine at the front in a good cause, and without asking any one to take stock in my prophecy, I will venture the prediction that a great national temperance reformation will be the result of this investigation, if the bill goes through the House But I am sore afraid that the contingency of getting the approval of any body with a Democratic majority, will prove too much for so good a measure The speech of Senator Morrill was in reply to a constitutional objection urged by Mr Bayard, the chief Democrat of the Senate, or rather one who divides that honor between himself and Messrs Thurman and Gordon A careful review of this speech would be interesting to the temperance men of Maine

PARSON KELLY,

IN MARION DOUGLASS

Old Parson Kelly a fair young wife brought home, but three months wed, and he never came back ever come backwood. His true heart and his dead. Though now for sixty years the grass has grown upon her grave, and all its simple stories. The moss. And willow branches creep to her grave across.

Outside the door in the warm summer air The old man sits for hours. The idle wind, that stirs his silver hair, Is sweet with June's first flowers. And still his mind is clouded with the haze Of life's last weary, gray November days And dim. The past and present look alike to him.

The sunny days around, confused and blurred, The twitter of the birds, Blend in the mind with voices long since heard— Glad childhood's careless words. Old hymns and Scripture texts, while indistinct, Yet strongly, are thought with all fair things linked. The bride Of his lost youth is ever by his side!

By his sweet wife, a spot of snowy blossoms bowed, The rose-tree branch hangs low And in the breeze, in long fleecy cloud, Sways slowly to and fro. "Oh, is it well?" the old man asks "Jennie?" And smiles as if such fancies that her face has been Beneath The drooping roses of a bridal wreath!

Down from the gambrel roof a white dove flies, Its pinions in the sun Are flashing close to where the dreamer sits, A vision with it brings. A girl long gone from some long vanished day, "Dear Jennie!" he calls, then, Will will you, dear, stay? He sights For all the joy of the life looks up and sighs!

Oh, cruel is death! whose falling blight is cling fast To one long laid in dust Still keeping furrowed in life, as in the past, Her look of perfect trust. Her soft voice hearing in the south wind's breath, Dream on, Love pure as the sky, as old and sweet as, And when The grave is full! her eyes meet mine again!

AT HOME AGAIN.

FRANKLIN HOUSE,

BANGOR, ME.

The undersigned, after a vacation of nearly two years and a half, once more takes his old place of duty in the FRANKLIN HOUSE, which he established in the early thirty years ago and which has grown up under his care and management, and to the present fair proportions of a highly attractive thoroughly appointed and luxurious hotel and now more than ever in the flourishing condition of a fair New England business. He assumes the direction of the house to business House with the now one of the best hotels in the state.

The location of the Franklin House is exceedingly pleasant and healthy. It is built on a hill, filled with all modern improvements, is close to the Post Office and Custom House, and to the business streets. MR. QUIN W. has so long been so well and favorably known in this city, that it is hardly necessary to call the public to Chief Clerk.

My thousands of old friends in Maine I have known and entertained for the last thirty five years are cordially invited to visit the FRANKLIN HOUSE, and judge whether the grasp of the landlord's hand is not as warm and cordial as it was before the frosts of three winters had begun to silver his locks. Verily, life and a blessing to me.
